There's never a day so sunny But a little cloud appears; There's never a life so happy

Bu) has had its time of tears; Yet the sun shines out the bright When the stormy tempest clears, There's never a garden growing

With roses in every plot; There's never a heart so hardened But it has one tender spot; We have only to prune the borde To find the forget-me nnt. There's never a cup so pleasant Hat has bitter with the sweet; There's never a path so rugged

That bears not the print of feet; And we have a Helper promised For the trials we may meet. There's never a sun that rises The tints that gleam in the morning At evening are just as bright, And the hour that is the sweetest

Is between the dark and light. There's never a dream that's happy But the waking makes us sail; There's never a dream of sorrow But the waking makes us glad; We shall look some day with wonder A) the troubles we have had.

Buxley rather resented this interference of the Judge in his joke; and, after a few angry remarks, he subsided at last, he did nothing, thought of nothinto a sulky silence, which lasted for nearly a mile. At the end of that time his good-nature returned; and, after taking n reconnoisance into the Interior of the stage, he said to the Judge, in a half whisper: "He's holdin' the little gal on his lap and kissin' her. An' his wife, she's got her head on his shoulder." The Judge looked away over the hills and tried to whletle. A lamentable failure! Buxley Hdgeted in his seat, and, as he touched up lazy Jack with bis prize whip, he vowed to himself that he'd get a wife and settic down, The Revere House, Spider Flat, had emptied its whole population out on the steps of the broad piazza. They had heard in the distance the rattle of the old stage, the crack of Buxley's whip, and his final yell to Jack and Rover, and had rashed out pell mell to see the passengers disembark. Even a couple of Mongolians, who kept a laundry in a dry goods hox next to the Revere, anight the general spirit of enriusity and appeared at the door of their estab-

AN OLD CHURCH. St. Michael's Church at Marblebead Mass.; which is said to be the oldest editice of the Episcospal Church in New England, was creeted in 1705, the frame and all the material used in its construction being brought from England. The building retains many of its original features; the ancient reredos, with its credo and decalogue; the ancient chandelier, "the gift of John Elbridge, Esq., of ye city of Bristol, 1832," which on special occasions is used to illuninate the church; the original lock and key with which the doors were fastened by the church fathers; and the same uld propit, of a wine-glass pattern. In accordance with request and as matter of general public interest, we give the provision of the will of Gen. Thayer in etablishing the Thaver Academy in Braintree. Thayer, "the cause of education in Massachasetts, according to my ability, and o benefiting the town of Braintree, the piace of my birth, and to secure the payment of the annuities herein created, hereby give, devise and bequeath all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate real and personal, not herein specifically devised and appropriated to George Tyles Bigelow, LL. D., of Quincy; Ebenezer Al den, of Randolph; William S. Dexter of Banokiine; Asa French and George Augus tus Thayer, both of Braintree; Seth Turner of Randolph, and Solomon Lincoln of Hingham, to hold, manage and dispose o this trust, which may by donations hy others or by increase amount to the value of $260,000. Then the trustees shall appropriate therefrom a sum not exceeding $60,000 to the purchase of a plece of land in said Braintree, and to the erection and completion thereon of an edifice or of edisuitable for an academy in which young persons of the male sex (or of both sexes if my trustees deem it expedient) ahall be educated. My intention and my will is that the above sum shall be in addition to $20,000 to be furnished by the town of Braintree or individuals for that purpose. In case the said town or individuals fail to furnish auch money, then the trustees are author lzed to locate it in either of the towns of Quiney or Randolph, and to make such terms as they shall see ilt with either oi these towns in relation to location of the academy. I direct that no one under the age of twelve years be received as a pupi in said academy, nor unless versed in readlng, spelling, writing, English grammar, arithmetic, etc.; that such and so man free scholars as my trustees may deen proper be educated without any charge for their tuition, provided that every such free scholar shall have been born in said Quiney, Braintree, or Ranpolph, or if not born there, that one or both of his or he parents shall reside in one of said towns at the time of his or her continuance as n pupil in said academy; and in deciding ou the admission of such free scholars, I re quest that those loay be preferred whon my trustees may deem most enpahie, and most industrious, most advanced in learnlng and most worthy, without regard to the peculiar circumstances of their parents or guardians. The trustees are directed to make all rules ami regulations for the government of said academy, not inconalstent with the forementioned cianse, in reference to the number and selections of

I also request that a sum be appropria ted out of the fund for medals and money prizes to be awarded to distinguished students. At the commencement of everyear, or as soon thereafter as practicable year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, my trustees shall submit a financial exhibit of the fonds and Academy expenses to the Governor, and also publish the same in a Norfolk County newspaper. If any difference of opinion arise or exist annougst the trustees, a majority shall rule, and in case of an equal division of opinion, then the matter in question shall be referred to the Supreme Coort, whose decision shall be final.

With the first day of the antumn, comes weather which is very comfortable. it as a whole, the summer now ended has been anything but oppressive. The warm days began early and have continued with few interruptions, but we have had little atifiing heat. The rains hereabouts have been frequent enough to satisfy the thirst of the vegetation, and throughout the country there has been but little reason to complain of the fack of moisture; indeed, in some regions there has been too much

Lit has been a very fruitful season, the crops all over the country being exceptlonally large, and the weather favorable for their gathering, so far as they have been harvested. Large as the crop is, there is a promise of a full demand for our cereais, for the harvest in England has not been an average one, and the war lu which Russia is engaged, and which promises, if it lasts, to tax her resources of men and material to the uttermost, bas prevented the gathering of a large harvest in that country and interferes seriously with the sales of what they have already gutbered.

The Norfolk County Gazette, aliuding to the statement that Sheriff Thomas will not be a candidate for renomination, (except as a compromise) says "It may be pretty safely predicted that Mr. Rulus C. Wood of Canton, will be the Republican candidate for Sberiff. Mr. Wood is wellknown in Norfolk County as a thoroughly experienced, capable, competent, fuithful, energetic, reliable officer. He was born In the town of Dudley, in Worcester County, May 30, 1818, and cume to Canton in 1830, where he has continued to reside to the present time. His maternal grandfather, Timethy Corbin, was a Deputy Sheriff for a great number of years lu Worcester County. In 1850. Mr. Wood was chosen to the office of constable la the town of Canton, and Sheriff Adams made him a Deputy Sheriff in 1853, and these offices he has continued to hil to the present time, besides serving the town as tax-collector and selectman for several years. In 1861, Mr. Wood was appointed post-master of Canton, and has held the office aninterruptedly to the present thoe. In all these public services Mr. Wood has enjoyed the confidence of the people to a most remarkable degree. Jurors, suitors, and witnesses, who have had business a the courts, have borne testimony to his constant courtesy, and the prosecuting officers have found in him an efficient as sistant. There can be little doubt that, it Mr. Wood receives the Republican nomination, he will unite and bring out the enthe Republican vote of the county; and his friends confidently predict the he will draw a great many Democrats to his support. He will make a most efficiclent and worthy Sberlif, and will bring to the performance of the duties of the office, experience dignity and every desirahle acquirement.

TOWN AND VICINITY.

n Boston has proved to be an excellent means for training the boys in discipline and deportment, and the question of enrolling the school-boys of Weymouth in organizations of this character has been roached by one of our residents, who is the river bed. An old oysterman, old mliltia days, was noted for its military spirit, and without a doubt the descendants of our former warrlors would be found imbued with enough of their prowess to enter upon the project with alacrity. All that is necessary to develop such a ovement is the aid of some of our skilled tactitians in organizing a battallon and instructing the boys in the movements, for which latter purpose each Saturday afternoon might be employed. That it would be a benefit to our army of boys in its development of deportment and discipline is beyond question, and it is the desire of uite a number of citizens that the inception of this project may soon present acjust result in the establishment of "WEY-

This is an industry which has been very much depressed amongst us for some time. For years it was the source of lucrative smployment and a general benefit to all engaged in it, and in consequence its prosperity was of great advantage to the com-munity. We are happy in being able to announce that there is a present appearance of a revival of this branch or industry again. Mr. A. C. BREAD AND WATER.

I often go to Plymouth church, for Mr. Beecher is the only elorgyman who can keep me awake and Lhad the pleasure of hearing his famous bread and water discourse.

What is that he said about the bread and water, Mary?" said I. "I couldn't hear it exactly for the people laughing."

"Why, he said a man who couldn't that they were tenants at will. They live on bread and water when necessity were Catholics, while their landlords required it, wasn't fit to live. That a were Protestants. By English law, family could love, work and be happy landlords could turn out tenants at will on bread and water for breakfast, water, on six months' notice, no matter what and bread for dinner, bread and water amount of money had been expended for supper."

I got over the first breakfast pretty well, the wa- the people. Judges and magistrates ter was cold, the bread sweet, and 1 had besides a good appetite. I dine every day at a restaurant in the city, and I think I rather astonished the wniter who came that day to take my order when I told him to bring me a nice glass of water and a plate of bread. From the way he looked at me it was plain he thought I was crazy, and I could see him whispering his impression to the other attendants. It was a good deal harder work to get down my dinner than ney breakfast, and when I returned to my office ulmost us hungry as before I left, I was far from being in my happlest temper as both the porter and the office boy quickly found out. But if it was hard to get through with my dinner, it was ten times more difficult to cat my supper. I told Mary her food was sour as swill, which made her cry and put her in the sulks for the rest of the evening. and when I sat down, according to habit, to read, I found I was hardly equal to the task.

The second day that I had ordered dinner at the restaurant the waiter had sung out lustily, 'Bread and water for one,' which had the effect of directing on me the gaze of every person in the establishment, and I was ashamed to go there again while 1 was pursuing my interesting physiological experiment. So on Wednesday 1 purchased a penny roll and partook of my repast in the Park, and I then discovered there was quite a large number of people who were making their noon-day meal of the same nutritious substance. When I went home in the evening I found Mary had practiced a neat bit of strategy by laviting two bright and pretty girls from over the way to tea. thinking, no doubt, their presence would make me ashamed of golug through with my resolution, and she had spread on the table as dulnty a Summer repast as any bookkeeper ueed to wish to sit down to. There was cold lamb, dellelous peaches and cream, home-made blscult (and it is she who knows how to make them) and tea that couldn't be beaten auywhere. But, oh, how pale became her cheek, and how full of teurs her blue eyes, and how the pretty glrls dld stare at me when I refused them all in a rather snappish way, and announced my intention of making my supper on dry bread and water. Although I say it myself, it is nevertheless true, I am usually a pretty good-tempered fellow, and cau make myself quite agreeable to the lidies, if they are all good-looking, but this evening I was so sour, sneering, and crabbed that the girls were glad to get out of the house, and they haven't crossed our threshold

I didn't sleep very well that night, and whenever I woke up 1 could hear Mary sobbing softly to hevself, and in the morning the pillow was wet with her tears. It was plaln as a pikestaff that the new regimen wasn't bringing much happiness into our horae.

How I got through Thursday I don't know, but on Friday I made so many blunders in my book-keeping, that my equal 5, and 6 and 7 foot up only 11 .- | itled form of Swedenborgianism.

I was too weak to go to business or Saturday, and got Mary to write to my employers excusing my absence on the ground of ill health, which was only the sober truth. It required all my lron will to keep my resolution that day. I loathed the bread. I hated the sight of water, which made poor Mary think I was getting hydropholia, and on Saturday evening I was obliged to give in and allow my anxious little wife to give me a little chicken broth, which quickly revived me. I could hardly get enough wholesome food to eat on Sunday, and toward evening I began to feel like myself again.

IRISH HOME-RULE.

Before the passage of Gladstone's land-bill, several years ago, farmers were absolutely slaves, for the reason by them on the farms, in the expecta-"Well, Mary," said I, "he must tion of a long residence. Landlords It ought to have been. Many landlords turned away tenants in order to convert large tracts of land into pasture. I have driven twenty miles and seen ronned where farmers had formerly ballot the people's franchise was merely in the hands of the landlord class .among the land proprietors, whose sympathies and supposed interests were antagonistic to the great mass of catered to England, and when cases came up before them involving religion or kind the law decided in favor of the judges prejudices. Landlords selected the sheriffs; sheriffs selected juries. Gladstone's lund-bill has greatly mitigated the old laws, and had Butt's bill passed, last session, Ireland would have had still greater freedom.

BRIGHAM TOUNG. The great ruler of the Mormons, who has just died in the full possession of the despotic power which he has so strangely attained, has a most remark able life story. Brigham Young was the son of a plain country farmer, and was born in the small town of Whitlngham, Vt., June 1, 1801. His education was very limited, less indeed than that of most country lads in the tirst years of the present century, but he made up largely for this deficiency In his manhood's year, and well posted on most subjects of general knowledgo. His father brought him up to the trade of a painter and glazier, but he soon began to show a peculiar tendency towards religious subjects. Brigham was early eonverted, joined the Baptist Church and occasionally preached. Going to the West he heard of the Mormon excitement, and in 1832 joined that sect at Kirkland, O. Thenceforward he identified with all the fortunes of this strange religious body. He was soon SEWING MACHINES, all kinds, ordained elder, and discovering unusual zeal for the propagation of his new faith and the possession of some pulpit eloquence, he was sent to the Eastern States on a tour of proselyting. Though illiterate, and often coarse, he was very successful in winning converts to his way of thinking. Every year added to his power in the new sect. When, In June, 1844, Joseph Smith was murdered, Young and four others were set apart as candidates for the Presideney-or rather dictatorship-of the body. The "Apostles," as the Choosing Committee were called, unanimously se lected Young, and the sect in general was well satisfied with the choice of its most earnest and successful proselyter. To prevent any possible dissatisfaction, Young's chief rival for the supreme honors, Sidney Rigdon, was sent late banishment. From the day of induction into office Brigham Young showed the qualities of a lender. When Nunvoo was declared a hostile city by the Gentiles, and the Mormons were driv en away from the town which they had founded, Young rallied his disheartened subalterus, and urged them to seek a new homo in the West. He led them across the desert and the prairie to the valley of the Great Sult Lake, declaring that here was the promised land of sojourn. In the desert spot a fertile region was found, and the prosperity of the community which Young thus founded has been one of the wonders of the time. Young was every where recognized as absolute dictator and his rule was intlexible. In 1849 he recognized a State which he called Deseret, and applied to Congress for its admission. This was denied, but the following year the Territory of Utah was organized and Brigham Young accredited Governor for four years. So long as none but Mormons entered the Territory matters went on peaceably. But the "Gentile" settlers were looked upon as intruders, and many of the more fanatical Mormons, calling themselves "Hestroying Angels," wrought terrible outrages upon settlers not of their faith. The Mountain Mendow massacre has been forcibly brought to mind by the recent confession of John D. Lee, who charged that the atrocities were committed by the express command of Brigham Young; certain it is that he had dictatorial power, and, if he did not command the massaere, did uot attempt to restrain the fanaticism of his subjects. In 1854 a Provisional Governor, a Gentile, was appointed and Young defied the power of the Government for several years, refusing to ac-Alfred Cumming was sent as Governor to Utah, with 2500 men, and the dictator abdicated his temporal dominion, retaining still absolute spiritual control. This was most conclusively shown in his pronoulgation of "the relestial law of marriage," sanctioning poligamy.-

Last Saturday forenoon, Ilvo men were at work excavating for the new reservolr near Solomon Lovell's house, and had reached a depth of about 16 feet, when they were suddenly overwhelmed with the advent of a horse and cart in the bole. It seems that the team had been backed up t the excavation to take a load of earth, when the horse turned his head and caught the cherk reln on the plu of the shaft causing the horse to run back and precipitating him into the excavation with the cart. The men who had charge of the team shouted to the workmen to stand clear, and they were thus enabled to avert the danger which threatened them by standing close to the sides of the excavatlun. The team struck a piatform which had been erected about haif way up to throw the earth from the bottom, thus partially breaking the force of the fail, aml then rolled to the bottom, the horse being were somewhat injured, but not seriously. and the escape from death of the whole number was truly providential. Efforts were made to release the horse from his position by laying plank and endeavoring o make him walk up, but as he would not budge an luch a mumber of men took hold of the animal and lifted him out of the pit, returning him to the surface in good condition.

The results not being made known till Monday night, the youthful aspirants were kept in suspense over Sunday. Monday afternoon's mail over Sunday. conveyed the happy intelligence to thirty-three of the number that they were admit-ted; but, "leil it not in Gath," only seren of the number were boys. I pity that seven, with such a crowd of giris to triumph over Ansel O. Clark, Josiah Penniman, Warner them. You know, Mr. Editor, what we have always said about the superiority of the sex. Wonder what our Hyde Park friend has to say about it now.

The Mr. Johnson commenced the morning services by reading selections of scripture the Union was, at the linish of the trial, his text, which was the 20th verse of the past, the Summer is ended, and we are net saved." Mr. Johnsen described the desperate cendition of the Jews at that time; the next muster. for many long weary mouths they had been threatened with subjugation by their eneinles, on account of their Idolatry. The hosts of the Assyrians rose like a wall between them and the green hills of Palestine. The Assyrians were hopeful, the Jews were downcast. What could they do? What could they expect or hope for? All was dark and foreboding. The words of the text, then, were to he regarded as an utterauce of tlespair, and self accusation." The harvest is past and the Summer Is ended and we are not saved." Opportunities had occurred and had been neglected of escape from this perilous coudition and the cruelty of their enemies, were gone, perhaps forever. Here we have a parallell between the hesieged elty and the shuer. Tho Jews had had a summer season and the afternoon he gave a very interesting sliseners on the salvation of histants, from the text, "I shall go to him, but he will not return to me."

A FLYS TOTLET.

The told of the fly is as carefully at-liked to at that of the most frivolous human insects. STAINING WOOD-WORK

The Manufacturer and Builder gives the following sensible hints on this subject: We often stained pine wood by tho meuns of linseed-oil in which a little burnt Sienna and Van Dyke brown were mixed. The Slenna alone is too reddish, and the Van Dyke brown alone too dull; but a mixture mukes a fine shade, which you can vary by chnuging the proportious according to taste, and give it the appearance of mahogany, black walnut, and even rosewood. Do not stain with watery decoctions of logwood, Brazil wood, etc., as every nail. or even trace of iron, will cause very unsightly black spots; besides you cannot so well control the shade of color as you can with oil. After the oil is well dyed, coat with amber varnish .-If you wish a jet black, however, stain with a strong watery solution of exdiluted solution of bichromate of potash, and rub with a rag to remove the graylsh film which will appear on the surface; if not jet bluck, repeat the operation. When the black is satisfuetory, put on gold bands with yellow bronze powder mixed lu a little varnish; mix a little at a time, as it soon becomes very hard. When dry coat the whole with a good varuish to give it gloss, and the black with gold bands will be very handsome and distingue.

THE USES OF THE LEMON.

As a writer in the London Lancet remarks, few people know the value of lemou julce. A piece of lemon bouml upon a corn will cure it in a few days; It should be renewed night and morning. A free use of lemon jnice and sugar will always relieve a congb.— Most people feel poorly in the spring, but if they would eat a lemon before breakfast every day for a week,-with or without sugar, as they like,-they would find it better than any medicine. Lemon julce used according to this recipo will someties cure consumption. Put a dozen lemous into cold water and slowly bring to a boil; boll slowly until the lemons are soft, but not too soft, then squeeze until all the juice is extracted, add sugar to your taste, and drink." In this way use one dozen lemons a day. If they cause pain, or loosen the bowels too much, lessen the quantity and use only five or slx a day until you are better, and then begin again with a dozen a day. After using five or six dozen, the patient will begin to gain flesh and enjoy food.

A MONSTER.

St. Louis has a monster, apparently a fresh-water cousin of the sea serpent, a composite and terrible monster, with a body as big as a figur barrel; brown, glistening scales; a mane like a horse's a head like a dog's, a bill like a pellcan's, through which it spouts water like a whale; six legs, two huge fins, and a tail like a double-edged saw. The print of and near the water was fourteen Inches wide and twelve inches deep. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, learns that the peoplo living on the river bank are considerably excited. We should think they might be.

A DEUTSCHF-FEST.

The past week has been notable in New York for camp-meeting and German festivals. The Platt Deutsche-Fest was the event of the week, not far froni fifty thousand people taking part in the jubilee. On Tuesday the golden customs and costumes of hundreds of years ago. To describe the procession would be simply impossible, and some of the characters excited the most convulsive laughter. Judge Hilton, mounted on a gigantic wooden horse, was a notable feature, and excited the especial to say, on behalf of journalistle truth, or under mny circumstances, uttered the so they willio and she showed a half slander imputed to him. It is a miser_ able slander from tirst to last, and the who love ami take pride in their profession, cannot afford to gratify their personal dislike to the Brooklyn preacher at the expense of honor and truth. AWPUL CARRAGE.

Seven sewing machine agents und fourteen book agents invaded a county n Iowa lately, and the Governor was nimediately urged to send troops, but he said he had none at his command, though he promised to send a comple of lightning-rod men and a chromo man, who would talk them to death. Then little while to push the accumulation the county just got up and went over the river and hid in the woods until the sounds of carnage died away.

As the pale moon rose up slowly and enimly she saw the cold corpses of seven sewing machine agents and the two thoroughly, for when he has finished lightning-rod men, while the only living ereature that roamed the tleld was n neat has he made himself within a few deaf chromo man in the wild delirium

STELLAR TREOLOGY.

An English elergyman points out that the leading stars in the constellation Orion form a figure closely resembling the letter aleph, the lirst of the Hebrew alphabet. Ile also makes out in the ireck omega in the same asterism, and sees in these facts, or fancies, important theological suggestions. But we will let him speak for himself: "If the assumption of the odds being so great that the Almighty Creator has intenexistence of a creator; but further, that it in the former part of the day. they are not only signs for that purpose, but that this one, Orion, is the partieutract of logwood. CRIMES AND CASUALTIES CAUSED BY

Colonel J. G. Dudley, from a committee appointed by the Executive Committee to ascertain the number of crimes and casualties committed in onsequence of the uso of intoxicating liquors within the last few days, in New York, reported, a list, at a meeting of the Americau Temperance Association in that city, which was briefly as follows:

A drunken husband knocked the front teeth of his wife down her tbroat. 2. A man in prison, suffering under delirium tremens, was trying to kill himelf. 3. A nice young man was arrested for being druuk, ami was worried alnost to death lest his mother should near of it. 4. A man in high position eonimitted for drunkcuuess. 5. A police officer sent up for drunkenness 6. Where a man employed in a stocking factory was discharged for druukenness and almost brained his employer. 7. Four men arrested for a razor tight while drunk in a barroom. 8. A druuken man beat his wife with u big stick. 9. A drowned body was ascertained to be that of a blacksmith, who was last seen drunk. 10. A rare case where a druuken printer had a fight with a bar keeper because the latter would not trust him for a driuk. 11. A drunken man ground a hatchet for the purpose of killing his wife, and was only prevented from doing so by his son, fifteen years old, who, to save his mother's life, killed bls father. These were some of the prominent occurrenees occasioned by rum within the last few days.

HARDER TIMES. - Though the hard times since 1873 have been of much longer duration than nt any previous period, such absolute impecuniosity has never prevailed in the last four years as occurred thirtyfive years ago. Then Mr. Ticknor writes to Sir Charles Lyell, under date November, 1843: "There has been Missouri farmers came upon bim as he great suffering in all our States, and in one, like Indiana and Illinois, a propand then puttlug like a sea cow and er currency has disappeared, and men lashing up the sand with his tail .- bave been reduced to barter in the com Their borses were so frightened that mon business of every-day life. It happened the other day on the Broad St. East Weymouth. Lehigh Valley Railroad. The train the webbed and clawed foot in the wet had just left Easton, and the conductor was making his first round, when he obsorved a small white dog with a hushy tall and bright black eyes, sitting coslly beside a young lady so handsome that it made his heart roll over like n lopsided pumbkin. But duty was duty, and he remarked he his most deprecate-

REPETITION.

The Rev. Samuel Nott, D. D., was a very singular man of the ohlen time. Ite died in 1852 at the age of ninety-eight having been the paster of a single tlock in what is now Franklin, Conn., for seventy years. He was in the habit in his early days of writing out his sermons and committing them to memory against arbitrary arrangements by mat- before preaching them. As the fruit begins to turn in color do uot remove any leaves to expose the grapes to the sun, as they ripen no sooner by so doing, and the effect of the sun is injurious rather than beneficial, while the removal of the leaves actually reards the ripeniag of the grapes by cheeking the flow of sap through the canes, which the leaves regulate according to the requirement of the growing

To produce the best fruit, and in perfection, the small clusters of grapes, when vines set a good deal of fruit must be cut or pinched off, leaving but one bunch generally to each shoot of cane. Many vines are often so productive that It is impossible for the roots to afford full sustenance to the entire crop.

THE FORMICA PENNSYLVANICA.

There is a general notion that only tropical countries are infested with ants that are enpable of doing serious damage. This, it appears, is a mistake There is a black "carpenter aut," whose name, Formica Pennsylvanica indicates its residence, that is capable of effecting much distruction in woodwork. The Rev. Dr. McCook has seen a rafter which these ants penetrated to un extent of five or six feet of its length. completely honey-combing it. The rafter was in the roof of the porch The attention of the Philadelphia Academy of Sciences was called to the matter, as it is evident that such pene tration of wooden structures, and especially bridges, might cause their unex pected fall. Wooden bridges need a least as frequent and as thorough in spection as Iron structures.

LITERATURE

A little elbow leans upon your knee,
Your weerled knee, that has so much to bear;
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
From underneath a thatch of tangled hair.
Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch

Of warm, moist fingers, folding yours so tight

You do not priss this blessing over much, You are almost too tired to pray tonight.

Bot it is blessedness i A year ago
I did not see it as I do today—
We are so dull end thankiess, and too slow
To catch the sunshine till it slips eway.

To catch the sunshine till it stips sway,
And now it seems surpassing strange to me,
That, while I bore the hadge of wotherhood
I did not hiss more oft and tenderly
The little child that brought me only good.

And if, some night when you sit down to rest, You miss this elbow from your tired knee, This restless, curling head from off your breast, This lisping tongue that chatters constantly; If from your own the dimpled hands had slipped,

And ne'er would nestle in your palms again :

f the white feet into their grave had tripped,

Al little children clinging to their gown; Or that the lootprints, when the days are west, Are ever black enough to make them frown.

Or cap or jacket, on my chamber floor:

f I could kiss a rosy, restiess foot, And hear its patter in my home once more

Tomorrow make a kite, to reach the sky— There is no woman in God's world could say

She was more blissfully content than I.
But, ah I the dainty pillow next my own
Is never rumpled by a shining head;
My singing birdling from its nest is flown;
The little one I used to kiss is dead.

Dear Sir :- Allow me a corner in your valuable paper that I may say a few words lu behaif of that noble animal the horse, for whom Mr. Bergh has done so much and also another worthy gentleman of on State, Mr., Saumel Pago. According to last Sumiay's Herald this latter gentleman is endeavoring to abolish blioders from bridles, which according to his reasoning, are very hurtful to the eye of the horse. Now I do not see why every reasonable minded man should not be of the same opinion. For during my experience which extends as far back as ten years at least, I have always thought the blimlers on a bridle as something very hurtful, and in many instances the chief cause for a horse being allieted with weak eyes. Now will some gentieman please inform Jumps of your paper. how long a set of those things will last on a new harness before they become a source of pain to the animal. "Say not thou, what is the cause that at Worcester, told her that something had tes: "Say not thou, what is the cause that the former days were better than these, for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this.". In opening Mr. Taylor noticed a few of the reasons why men are led to the conclusion that the former days were better than these. First, man is a heing possessed of personal conscious experience.
At first he is destitute of experience, and is only entering upon the field where expe rience of the world and of life is acquired, and as he reaches forth unto manhood the past-has receded, leaving behind- its pleasant memorles, and its victories, whilst the present has still its conflict, its "gall and wormwood." Second, man is liable to over estimate his importance; hence he feels disappointed when the world does not accept this assumption on his part. Third, as man grows old he leses that elasticity of nature, which formerly enabled him to adapt himself to the conditions with which he was constantly coming in contact: heace he is out of sympathy with the present, and "times are out of joint" with him; therefore all is wrong. Mr. Taylor then affirmed that the world is better to-day, socially, politically ami religiously. The Illustration of the truth of each of these propositions was clear and conclusive. On Sunday Rev. THE FLORIDA CRACKER.

The Florida Crackeri How shall we describe him and do justlee to our theme? How deftly draw the many lines which make up the lights and shadows in his character, yet "nothing extenuate, nor set down aught in mallee?" In the Carolinas kefore the war. he would have been comprehended in that third estate, the poor white trash. In Florida, twelve years after the war, he is the eracker; simply this and noth-

. Here, we opine, is a problem for phllologists. Let them define for our instruction, the meaning of the term cracker. Let them declare unto us lts subtle significance. It cannot be applled because of the snap possessed by erackers in general, and fire crackers in particular, for the Florida cracker has no snap. Snap is the one essential quality in which he is consplenously lacking. In truth he was born thred and seems never to have recovered from his ennui. . In early life he learned with complaisance, the advice of Wolsey to Cromwell and "thing away" ambition. The cracker's wants are few. Ensily and pleasantly he spans the distance from the cradle to the grave. A small log house, a "dug out" canoe and a dog comprise the sum total of his earthly possessions, and fill up also the measure of his desires. Five dollars, yearly, secure for him nll necessary clothing, and, outside of this, his need of ready cash is only for the purchase of tobacco, log, and hominy. His occupation consists chiefly of hunting, fishing, and sitting still The "sick Yankee" is unto him a rich revelation, and the sick Yankee abounds in Florida during the winter months. He is the Cracker's gold mine, his hank, his sole hope of the nforesaid tobacco, hog and hominy in the future. He buys birds' wings alligator teeth, orange canes, sea beans shells and other "enriosities," and pays ten times as much as he could purchase the same thing for at home. He kires the Cracker at several dollars per diem. to pilot him through the woods, and show him game.

The sick Yankee, as well as the Yankee sportsman, has also an abundant supply of good provisions whilst camping out, and this fact the Cracker is fully aware of. He will travel five miles before daylight to be in season to breakfast with you, and will continue to accept your hospitality so long as you continue to bestow it. The Cracker has long ago put aside any rancor which may have existed before the last decade, and has buried the hatchet. The "bloody chasm" of the political orator, is to him only a recollection. He is a homoepathist, and has closed the chasm by opening another,-his own, and this he proceeds to fill up with the Yankee's canned meats and fruits, batter, cheese, condensed milk and other (to him) deli-Let justice be done! The Cracker is himself hospitable. He will share his last crust with a traveller, even though he be a stranger. The difficulty is, liowever, to catch him when he has a crust. A friend of the writer was recently overtaken in the nine woods by the evening shadows, and began to look about him for a chance to pass the night. He was tired and hungry, had lost his road, and was, in consequence greatly relieved when he espied, through the gathering gloom, the light of a pine knot tire, in front of a cracker habitation. Riding up, he was just about dismonnting from his horse, when a dirty and ragged little urchin sidled up to him, and remarked with a sad impression, "We uns haint gut no homi-The gentleman replied that he was sorry they were lacking in that essential article and proceeded to dismount. "We mis haint gut no bacon," again chimed in the childish voice, in a tone still sader than before. Somewhat surprised that bacon and hominy, the staple articles of food in a cracker dwelling, should both be wanting, our friend was about to offer a consolatory remark, when the voice, which now had tears in it, again struck in with "We uns haint gut no flour," and the boy, nnalde louger to repress himself. bonneed off behind the house and wailed. It was, indeed, the fact. The house contained neither bacon, hominy nor tlour; and, what was worse, nothing else that was edible.

Paterfamilias had gone off tifteen miles to the store to purchase provi- hence the hazing and abuse we read so sions, and wasn't expected back until much about. (We always get the the next day. He might us just well have gone before, since he knew that provisions were getting low, and he had the money wherewith to purchase but he was troulded with nu attack of his hereditary disease of sitting still, and chose not to move until hunger drove hlm. I'erhaps his was au exceptional case, and the constitutional cracker malady was in him unduly developed. Exceptions, however, only prove the rule.

Our friend, the Cracker, is, for the most part, honest. He is, withal, tractable, good natured and well disposed: ever ready to bestow a favor, and always extremely auxious to receive one. It delights him to narrate legends of blood and fight, in which he came very near engaging; but somehow the battle always finds him absent. This is not strange, for the Cracker is peaceable. In pace requiescat.

In the case of the hair, says the New York Express, the first and most Indlspensable thing is a good hair brush. This is the best tonie in the world, taking the place of all pomades, washes and lotions. It cleanses the head even hetter than shampooing, and is far more effectual than the lvory comb, which irritates the scalp and injures the helr. Choose a good-sized brush, with long, moderately stiff bristles, or, lictter still, a stiff one for cleansing the hair and n soft one for smoothing it. The London crown brushes are the best, the bristles being riveted in such a manuer that they do not loosen nor fall out. Brush your hair vigorously morning and night, or get some one to do it for you if you can. A hundred strakes of the brush is the legitimate allowance, and as these can be given by an expert in three minutes, it will not consume much time. Try this for a few weeks and you will find your halr become as

"WHEN THE TIDE GOES OUT."

With the life-tide obbing slowly away,
And the dew on his cold brow gathering fast, While the pendulum numbered moments passed And I heard a low voice whispering say, I'ray for a soui's serene release, That a weary soul may rest in peace, When the tide goes out."

When the tide goes out from the sea-girl land It bears strange freight from the gleaning sand, The white-winged ships that silent wait for a favoring wave and a wind that's late The treasures east on a rocky shore, From the stranded ships that shall sail no more, And hopes that follow the shining seas, Oh i the ocean wide shall win all these "When the tide goes out."

that of all drift from the shore to the sea. Is the human soul to eternity Saddest, most solemn of all—a soul Passing where unknown waters roll, Floating away from the silent shore, Like a fated ship to return no unire; Vhere shall the surging corrents tend Slowly dividing friend from friend, " When the tide goes out."

For one parting spirit, pray, oh! pray, Vhile the tide of life is ebhing away, that the soul may pass over summer sea that clasped of old the Hesperides, n a barque whose sails, hy angel hands, shall be furled on a strand of golden sands And the friends that stand on a silent shore, Knowing that we shall return no more, Shall wish us joy of a voyage fair, With calm, sweet skies and favoring air, " When the tide goes out."

Its oupulation is not less than fifty thouand. Some put It as high as a hunlred thousand. The boats come rowded and overcrowded, especially n Saturdays. The thred landsmer gets a whiff of sea-air and a plunge lu sen-water. Walt Whitman's "Amorous Wet" kisses many a langual frame into vigor. The pastlines are mild Checkers, chess, and chiefly croque tre the Methodist sins. The other 'c" (enrds) and the two "ds" (drinking and dancing) are referred to the outer courts. But pastlines are mingled with meetings. Almost every night or day for weeks some convocntion or conference or minor meeting s going forward. Prayers are held every morning under the large taberna cle, or in a smaller tent udjoining. So far as they ran, the original settlers keep up the forms and do not lose the power of their faith, though at times the forms looks almost as ghostly as the Thursday lecture would in modern to its blissful shores. Two things have made this city-hogality and cheapness. Its locality is unsurpassed on our coast. All other seashore resorts except Newport are on the continent. The hot west whals (and they prevail in summer) are not attempered at these places. It was us hot at Long Branch last year as in Philadelphia. This is on an island, so far out as to attemper the western heats. The water is warm. A stroak of the Gulf Stream sets along the shore. Above it, along the coast, from Cohasset to Momit Desert, the water is cold. It is safe to lathe. The surf is wantsurf. No ropes are needed. "Tots" of three years can plungo in. No life has been lost, or even endangered.

It is cheap. Newport is a villa re-treat. The house residents do not know the hotel visitors. The Vineyard is within the reach of all. A box rosts from tive hundred dollars mward. Tents and rottages can be hired at moderate rates. It is the People's City. True, aristocracy is seeking it and it is tends to the masses, and the masses tend toward it. Prices are as high at some hotels as at Saratuga. Cottuges hotels, 10,000; visitors at boarding-housre erected as large and luxuriant as es, 10,000. Total, 30,000. villus. Visitors of distluction love to requent it, such as McClellan and Hooker and Whittier and Agassiz, Wilson, Clatlin, Grant, Bird, Andrews, Butler. A multitude of celebrities come and see, and leave delighted. Agassiz pronounced it unsurpassed for quaint attractives. Grant's sllent nature spake its praises. Hooker went states that a meeting of the tenants of that village is soon to be held, to see if they annot obtain an abatement in the rents of dwellings, as he says the terms are higher than can be pald by the workingment and even exceed the rents of houses in South Boston. The solution of this latter difficulty, we think, is found in the fact that there is a surplus of dwellings in South Boston, which in ordinarily good times would command a large rent; and as they cannot be let at usual rates, owners are compelled to make lower terms. It is well known to city residents that dwellings can be obtained in some sections of the clly at rates which would not pay the intheir cost, saying nothing of the laxca. In East Weymouth the case leas a decidedly different bearing, the number of houses not being sufficient for the wants of tenants, and the law of supply and demand is in full force. We do not desire to be understood as advocating exorbitant rents, neither are we posted as to the charge made against the property owners of the village, but in the present dearth of tenements we cannot see any remedy save the building of additional dwellings, and from present appearances we should infer that the real estate owners of East Weymonth were in a fair way to effect a reme dy in this manner, new houses being annonnced in every cdition of the GAZETTE. BRAINTREE DEPARTMEN.

There were much better audiences at all the aecident being in charge of a span of the services of our churches morning and horses hitched in a wagon, when from very general interest is expected. Let the afternoon, on Sumlay, than there has been some cause the horses took fright and for some time. This is worthy of note, started off, and coming in collision with and it is hoped will continue, for there is plenty of room for all, and there is nothing which cheers the preacher so much as a crowded church. The benefit of such a ricel to the house it an insensible condition case is mutual; men are social, and it is good to sit so close to one another as to feel the beating of one another's heart. May we not hope for a return to the good only some severe bruises had been susoid times, so far at least, that it will be distanced. The boy is now doing well. reputable for any man, especially a man who claims social position, not to have any churck connection. In our opinion it just as incumbent, just as rational, just as necessary, as it is for such a man to have his daily newspaper. How is our Protes tantism to be preserved, unless we as Individuals do all we can to preserve it. We know of nothing more precious for intelligent men to strive after, or labor for, than a sustained effort in promotion of the prosperity of some one of our churches. It patriotic, for the character of our lustitutions is wholly bound up in the healthy support and the active promotion of the prosperity of our churches. In the morning Rev. Mr. Johnson preached, and in opening read a part of the 14th chap, of Luke, and then gave out the 4th hymn, "While thee I seek, protecting power," and also the one with the refrain, "Labor On." In singing the last we could not help notleing the fine effect produced upon the congregation by the choir, whose singing is always good, and equal to most of the city choirs. Mr. Johnson the announced his text, from the 18th verse of the 14th chap, of Lnke, "And they all with one consent began to make excuse. He sald excuse making is old and very common; common in those days and common now. Invitations to the Gospel feast, to the Supper of the Lamb, are disregarded; men do not want to come, and the liconsistency is that we do not treat other invitations so. But in regard to the Gospel invitation there are always certain considerations which are more important, and which have to be first halulged, however frivolous, and which keep men from accepting the Invitation. One said, I have bought a piece of ground; another, I have 4th, 1807. He was dismissed May 4th, 1809, Landing. bought five yoke of oxen; another, I have and the Rev. Richard S. Storrs was ormarried a wife." The last was the most pltiable of them all, even although equiva- continued its pastor till near the time of lent to five yoke of oxen, and such is the way men treat the invitation today. They do not, or will not reason upon the matter. The things we see and handle, things of sense, have a fascination which excludes preacher is still felt in the parish. Before the claim to consideration which religion presents. The will is wrong, and it has to be corrected. The devices of sin are as numerous as the stars of heaven. If any one is deceived, it is yourself. God is not deceived, Christ knows, and you know that many excuse themselves by saying, if I accept religion then I am cut off from every worldly enjoyment; I expose myself to the ridicule and sneers of the world; I can- tors in 17d years. It is remarkable, and not, if I were to accept it, live up to its requirements; I am so lusy that I cannul attend to the discharge of the duties it lotcover a period of more than 150 years. poses, and there are so many different be-liefs that I don't know which is right. To all of these excuses it may be answered, what is time given for? Is not the present a time of probation and are not the verities which religian presents of the first impor-

reason, ami in svason. In the afternoon Rer. E. M. Taylor preached a stirring sermon on the character of Daniel, to an audience that any minlster might well feel proud to address. Mr. will prove a "stay and a comfort" to him Taylor is a preacher full of electric fire. when old age overtakes him. There was evidently a feeling of derotion pervading the nullence, and a connection between the worshipers and the place. It was indeed a "waiting assembly." Mr. Taylor prayed that pastor and people might be one. It is essential that they should be so, if any benefit is to be derived at all from public worship. Somo sermons might as well be addressed to empty walls, for all the connection they have with the real wants, the sins, and sorrors of living

Mr. Taylor in opening the service read the 23rd Palm and then gave out the 633d hymn, "Mid scenes of confusion," and he the sluging of this grand hymn the whole congregation joined. Mr. Taylor made choice of the 12th verse of the 5th, and the 3rd verse of the 6th chaps. of the book of Daulel, for his text. In opening he de- and both have been intense. They were thoughtful; they confidence lu the success of the "Butcher took no notice of the crowded streets, but Boy" at Milford. It has been indeed an their thoughts were of home, and of those exciting time, and the best of it is, there that were there. If perchance they did bas been reason and occasion for the excast a look at the spectators, it was in the citement. The character and record of forlorn hope that they might catch the the engine had to be maintained, and forwistful conutenance of a mother. He then contrasted the character of Daniel with that of King Belshazzar, and said that Daniel was the most perfect character in Boy", for "whatever men dare they will Bible blography; his virtues are still being do." When it was known that they had extolled, whilst the spiendors of Babylon and of Belshazzar's Court have vanished liko a troubled dream. Daniel's religion was a religion litted for storms. Those who possess it can laugh at the fagot and living uses. It was a pleasing surprise to the stake. Mr. Taylor found the following many that there was so much good himoor features of character strongly marking and swaying that of Daniel, viz., His teachablity, his integrity, and his deep religious conviction; and these principles be applied and lusted upon as being ludispensably necessary for the security of young men, Lectoro l'estponed. The lecture announced by Mrs. C. R. nitely postponed, owing to the smalmess of the audience. It was stated, when this was announced, that the estensible causes which have contributed to this was that the Norfolk Conference of chareles had been held at East Weymouth business in Boston, got up a pair of conduring the day, and that the Haptist prayer meeting was held the same evening, and the Universalist Conference held at Dorchester, N. The Engineer's Story. " Let me pul my name down first-I ean't slay long!" It was a red ribbon meeting, and the man was n locomotive engineer, brouzed and strong, and having eyes full of deep determination. He signed his name in a bold, plnln hand, tied a red ribbon in this button-hole, and, as he left the hall,

"As the Lord looks down upon me, I'll never touch liquor again!"

"Have you been a hard drinker?" queried a man who walked beside the engineer.

"Int you seemed eager to sign the "So I was, and I'll keep it through thick and thin, and talk temperance to every man on the road." You must have strong reasons?"

" Well, if you'll wall, down to the depot I'll tell yen a story on the way. You know I run the night express on the road. We always have at least two sleepers and sometimes we have as many as two hundred passengers. It's a good road and pretty straight, though there is a bad spot nrtwo. The night express has the right of way, and we make fast time. It's no rare thing for us to skim along at the rate of tifty miles an hour for thirty or forty or lifty miles. One night I pulled out of Detroit with two sleepers, two coaches, and the baggage and mail ears. Nearly all the berths in both sleepers were full and most of the seats in the coaches were occupied. It was a dark night, threatening all the time to rain, and a lonesome wind whisthe around the cab as we left the city behind. We were seventeen minutes late, and that meant fast time all the way through.

"Well," he continued after a moment, "everything ran along all right up to midnight. The main track was kent clear for us, and we ran into D. as smooth as you please. The express dollars a month, and was to take my coming east should meet us tifteen miles pay half in mu old britolle cow, and the west of D., but the operator had failed to receive his usual report from below. and after a little consultation the conductor sent me ahead. We were to between Nancy and 1, till long late in keep the main track, while the other was to run in on the side track. Night after night our time had been so close that we did not keep them waiting over two minutes, and were generally in sight when they switched in.

When we left D, we went ahead at : rattling speed. Nine miles from D. is a little village, where there is a telegraph station, but the operator has no night work. He closed his office and went home at nine o'clock, and any messages for him were held above or below until the next morning. When I sighted this station I saw a red lantern swinging between the rails. Greatly astonished, I pulled up the train and body but you in my life." got a bit of news that lifted me out of my boots. It was God's mercy as plain cause I'm telling the truth just as I as this big depot. It was the operator should if I was swared. And us I was who was swinging the lantern. He saying, it made me feel dreadful bail. had been roused from sleep by the whistles of a locomotive, when there Wall, things kept a growing worse and wasn't one within ten miles of him .-He heard the toot! toot! toot! while he was dressing and all the way as be ran to the station, thinking he had been signalled. But there was no train there. Everything was as quiet as the grave .-The man heard his instrument clicking away, and leaning his car against the window he caught the words as they went through to D.:

"For God's sake switch the eastern express off quick! Engineer on the western express crazy drunk and running a mile a minute!"

The operator signaled us at once We had left D. nine miles away, and the message couldn't have caught us anywhere except at Parto. Slx miles further down was the long switch. It agan, arter piling on a whole armful of was time we were there, lacking one *minute. We lost two or three minutes In understanding the situation and consalting, and were just getting ready to ninish digging them taters," thus givswitch in when the headlight of the other train came in view. Great heavens! but how that train was tlying. The bell was ringing, sparks flying, the whistle screaming, and not a man of as could raise a hand. We stood there on with all her mite; and so as I seed no the main track, spell-bound as it were. encouragement in that quarter I sneeked There wouldn't have been thue to have up the ladder to bed, which was rite switched in or got the passengers ont. It wasn't more than sixty seconds before the train was upon us. The horse, unlike the dog, takes pleasure in music; at the sound of it, he raises his ears; he is mimated by a martial air: nt a slow movement he sluckens his pace. In the days, when regiments of cavalry had their own bands of music, the performers when upon the march, were seen quietly playing their parts, giving no level to the animals they rode, who advanced in perfect order, and without making the east mistake.

The iess and the ox experience the same pleasure in listening to melody. The ox advances his head as a sign of atisfation; the ass raises his ears and hows unmistakable evidences of enpayment. Mice are also among the madruped lovers of music.

The hirds are milomoniaes; arlists themselves, it is not strange that they not have this tasle. Among those that are distressed by music may be reckoned hens. The sound of a violin causes them to thy away with cries of fear. If shut up in a place where unusic is the down country towns, to keep the made, their demonstrations of terror are most comical and enrious. up, and was sented all over with colone

Reptiles and insects appreciate the harms of music. If one whistles before a lizard that is running away, it suddenly stops, and, if the air is agreeable, it listens with evident pleasure. An artist friend of mine had a cat made me feel awfully, but I felt worse which appeared very fond of music. Often when he placed himself at the picovered that she kinder hankered arter abno the, animal cable, jumped upon the stool and thence to the shoulder of "Now, Steve, stop your foolish gab, the pianist, which he did not optit so for you know that I never loved anylong as the former made the chards of he instrument resound beneath his "Don't 'rapt me old 'oman, don't.
